Merry Xmas to you all.

We thought that you would like to know that the time is rapidly approaching when our nurse interviewers will be knocking on your door again and asking you for a little more of your time to help us in our important study of health in Strathclyde.

Since we last visited you we have been working hard on the information you gave us preparing articles for publication and talks for British and International meetings. Now we feel it is time to visit again and find out how things might have changed since we last talked.

We shall be starting in January, but with 3000 people to contact it might be a month or two after that before you personally receive a visit. This time we will only be asking you to agree to one visit not two as before. As well as a range of questions on health and other important influences on health our trained nurses will be taking your blood pressure again along with a few other simple physical measurements.

We very much hope you will find time to help us as the success of the study depends entirely on being able to interview all the same people as we did before.

Best wishes

Graeme G Ford
