

About this project

The tests you are undertaking are part of a project which aims to examine the possible relationship between playing video games and developing the skills and competencies that are often referred to as 'graduate attributes' in higher education.

The survey is intended to measure things such as communication skills, and to collect basic information about your existing game-playing habits (or to find out if you don't play games at all). This is intended to allow us to look for any correlation between the games you play and the various 'graduate attributes' you possess and develop.

The attached consent form outlines how the data collected will be used but it is worth reiterating that all such data will be treated as confidential and only ever analysed and published in such a way as to ensure that your identity is impossible to determine. You may have access to your own test scores if you're interested in seeing these and you may opt to be kept informed of any subsequent findings.

In the event that you have any further questions (or complaints), the relevant contact details are reproduced below. Please do get in touch if you have any queries or concerns.

Contact details

Researcher Matthew Barr, Matthew.Barr@glasgow.ac.uk, 0141 3302854

Supervisor Ann Gow (Head of Subject), Ann.Gow@glasgow.ac.uk

Address HATII, 11 University Gardens, University of Glasgow, Glasgow G12 8QJ